VISITING HIS OLD SCHOOL.

VISITING HIS OLD SCHOOL.

It was supposed by intimate friends that after the dinner at Delmonico's on Thursday evening. Chief linguister Melville would remain quietly at his hotel until he went to Philadelphia on Friday afternoon. In this they were mistaken; for early yesterday morning Mr. Melville, accompanied by ex-Mayor Wickham, paid a visit to public school Mo. 3, at Grove and Hudson-sis, of which Mr. Melville was formerly a pupil. Di. Patterson was principal of the school at that time; and Mr. Suillivan, the present principal, was his assistant.

"The old school-rooms looked just as they did thirty-five years ago," said Mr. Melville to a linguist faces of the boys who are now following in our footsteps. Ex-Mayor Wickham, at the request of Mr. Suillivan, addressed to the children. I was then called mon, and I believe I made the longest speech I ever made in my life. I told the boys they must work if they expected to accomplish anything in the world. I related some of my own experiences and urged them to be faithful in the discharge of their outless while at school. I enjoyed talking with them very much as those semed to admix in all I said."

During the forencon Mr. Melville received calls from a number of prominent business men. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Mr. Melville, with Nimdermann and Noros, left this city for Philadelphia by the Pensylvania Kailroad. After spending a day or two there, the party will go to Washington, where Mr. Melville will report in person. When the recover of the Jeannette are received he will draw up an official report. It is Mr. Melville's intention to come lack to New-York at an early day and return the large number of calls which he has received during his brief stay.

A STORM OF WIND.

A STORM OF WIND.

A STORM OF WIND.

The storm that passed over the city on Thursday night and showed such electrical disturbance was spreas over a wider area than is usual with thuader storms. According to the officials in the Signal Service office it began in the region of upper Pakota and Manitoha three days before, and moved in an easterly direction. This city caught the outer edge of it, the centre of barometrical depression being at that time near Albany. Much rain fell, and washouts were reported in the track of the tornado, which, it some cases, delayed the mails. The B-ston mail, by way of the New-York and New-England Rufroad, due in this city at 4 a. m., was ten hours late, owing to a washout on the road. Yesterday, however, the storm had passed over and a strong northwest wind was blowing in its wake. Toward noon it had reached a velocity of twenty-eight noles an hour. The water in the bay became too rough for small boars to venture out. The steamers D. R. Martin and Matteawan, which ply between Whatehall Wharf and Bay Ridge, making connection with the Manhattan Beach trains, were unable to the up to the landing at Bay Ridge, and for several hours discontinued their trips. The wind lufled toward ingift, but the off-shore signal was kept flying from the tower of the Equinable Building. This serves as a signal to martiners who do not wish to be driven too far to sea, for an off-shore wind is not considered a dangerons one.

Ships commune to come with their sails bearing evidence of the evelone of Monday. No serious damage has so far been reported, for the reason that the eage only of the cyclone struck the region south and east of Sandy Hook; and, this being the southerly edge, the wind blow off-shore, Had it been the northerly edge of the cyclone struck the region south and east of Sandy Hook; and, this being the southerly edge, the wind blow off-shore more numerous.

TRADE WITH THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC. TRADE WITH THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Late advices from Enenos Ayres state that the Congress of the Argentine Republic is about to take action upon a proposition to grant a subsidy to maintain steam communication between Buenos Avres and New-York. John Rouch was asked by a TRIBUNE reporter if he had any information on the subject: He said: "A proposition was laid before me by the Minister of the Interior of the Argentine Republic, a year ago, for the establishment of dime by the Minister of the Interior of the Argentine Republic, a year ago, for the establishment of direct steam communication between the River Platte and the United States I sent a representative to that country and a centract was made with me to establish such a line, but the contract was conditional. It proposed to give a stipulated amount for the transportation of mails between that country and the United States, providing this country would also give assistance to the line. The arrangement feir through, because the American Congress declined to do anything toward developing the trade of both countries. I believe there is an excellent field in that part of South American to open markets for our products."

THE CASE OF ZACHARIAH SIMMONS.

H. M. Whitehead, counsel for Zachariah E. Simmons, appeared before Recorder Smyth vesterday in the Court of General Sessions and asked that the case against his client might be adjourned till Monday. He said that it had been agreed mon between himself and the former District Attorney, when a motion had been made two years ago to quash the indictment, that the counsel should have time for further argument on the motion if it was decided against the prisoner on the points presented. The motion was recently denied by Judge Gildersleeve. The Recorder said that the agreement, being simply a verbal one, was not binding on the present District-Attorney. The case was adjourned till Monday, when the prisoner will be required to plead in person or the counsel must present a written power of attorney to plead for him. attorney to plead for him.

DEFRAUDING AN IMMIGRANT.

Louisa Dobbiow, a newly arrived immigrant, was the complainant yesterday in the Court of General Sessions against Edward Weinart, whom she charged with defrauding her of a large quantity of wearing apparel. Weinart met the girl on her arrival in this city and went with her to Philadelphia. While there he secured the checks for the baggage, and on returning to this city he pawned the clothing. The young woman was an unwilling witness, and after the trial and conviction of the prisoner expressed her contined affection for him and ohered to marry him. The prisoner is said to have a wife and child living. He was sentenced by Judge Cowing to a term of two years and a haif in the State Prison.

She last saw the child at about 3:15 on the afternoon when she was missed. John Collins, of No. 84 Catharine-st., this city, was the second witness. He identified the prisoner as the woman who came to his house with a child on the night after the child was stolen. She wanted lodgings and, not being able to get them, he took her and the child to the Cortlandt-st. ferry. The case was then rested by the prosecution, and the first was the rested by the prosecution, and the first was the rested by the prosecution, and the first was the rested by the prosecution, and the first was the store about 4 p. m. on the day of her abduction. There was a woman with her. At this point Maggie Keppel raised her veil from her face, and the witness said positively that she was not the woman. He had not seen the woman before or since, and he was positive that Lizzie Selden was the girl. The woman with her was divessed in black, but she was from twelve to fifteen years older than Maggie Keppel.

Counsellor Wernberg, for the defence, then moved to dismiss the case, as there was no proof that the prisoner to await the action of the Grand Jury.

A GYPSY QUEEN IN BROADWAY.

A gaudily dressed, melodramatic-locking seventh daughter, of a seventh daughter, from the gypsy encampment, was the innocent object of a great deal of curiosity while walking down Broadway yesterday afternoon. Her pers m was adorned with currous-looking trinkets peculiar to her people. Her dress was of more numerous cofors than Joseph's traditional coat. Her other-colored shoulders and brawny arms were bare. A variegated parasol covered a hat that may have been in fashion somewhere at sometime. She was not at all annoyed at the attention paid her, but seemed to look upon it all as the homage due a queen of cards, clairvoyance and palmistry.

TWO MISSING CHILDREN.

The police were directed yesterday to make a search for William Robinson, afne years old, who has been missing from his home at No. 42 Warts-st., for nearly a week. When he disappeared, his mother was away from home. He took with a new suit of clothes and a small amount of money, and it is supposed that he intended to go to the West to hunt Indians.

Mary Reilly, fourteen years old, left her home at Green, lield, Mass., on Thursday, intending to visit a relative in this city. Her relatives have been un-able to get any trace of her since that time.
